Background / Discussion:

We Need YOU to Share Your Community's Story for Rooted in Place: Celebrating Colorado at 150!

We invite you to submit an entry highlighting a person, place, or aspect of your community's cultural heritage whose story you would like to share.

Every region of the state has a unique sense of place worth celebrating that keep community identity alive through their stories of culture, history, heritage and tradition. In 2026, Colorado marks 150 years of statehood, and to honor this milestone, Colorado Preservation, Inc. will feature Rooted in Place as part of the 2026 Saving Places Conference (Feb 10-13 at the Doubletree Hotel in Denver's Central Park neighborhood). We invite communities from across Colorado to share stories and photographs that highlight the places, landscapes, landmarks, and people that are important to YOU.

Rooted in Place will be a visual and narrative journey through Colorado's past and present, showcasing the many ways people connect with place. As attendees walk the conference corridors, they will engage with compelling accounts of preservation and continuity, encountering the faces, voices, and places that embody the past, present and future.

Your submission will become part of Rooted in Place: Celebrating Colorado at 150, an exhibit featured throughout the 2026 Saving Places Conference. Printed posters incorporating the submitted photographs and text will line the hallways, creating a powerful, collective portrait of Colorado's people, places, and preservation efforts.
